Welcome to the ENCePP website!

The European Network of Centres for Pharmacoepidemiology and Pharmacovigilance (ENCePP) is a project led by the European Medicines Agency (EMA) intended to further strengthen the postauthorisation monitoring of medicinal products in Europe by facilitating the conduct of multi-centre independent post-authorisation safety studies and studies focusing on lack of efficacy. This will be achieved by using available expertise and research experience in the fields of pharmacoepidemiology and pharmacovigilance across Europe in a network of excellence, comprising relevant research centres, medical-care centres, healthcare databases, electronic registries and existing European networks covering certain rare diseases, therapeutic fields and adverse drug events of interest.

This ambitious project started in 2006 and is a key initiative within the European Risk Management Strategy (ERMS), which aims to apply a proactive approach to monitoring of medicines throughout their lifecycle. The project will consist of several phases. The first phase, aimed at identifying a number of suitable centres across Europe, has been finalised. This has resulted in the establishment of a general inventory of over 80 research institutions following a survey at the level of EU Member States. In addition, an inventory of pharmacoepidemiological databases and useful patient registries is envisaged.

The focus for 2008-2009 is on

- Establishing common research standards,
- Developing a code of conduct to ensure transparency and independence of any research undertaken by the network,
- Comprehensively cataloguing the available resources both in terms of research centres and of available data sources to perform the required research.

The European Network of Centres for Pharmacoepidemiology and Pharmacovigilance (ENCePP) is a project led by the European Medicines Agency (EMA) aiming at combining the available expertise and research experience in the fields of pharmacoepidemiology and pharmacovigilance across Europe in a network of excellence, including relevant research and medical-care centres, healthcare databases, electronic registries and existing European networks covering certain rare diseases, therapeutic fields and adverse drug events of interest.

ENCePP comprises academic institutions and public and non-for-profit organisations that are active in pharmacoepidemiological and Pharmacovigilance research.

If you and/or your organisation are interested and/or actively involved in performing research in the field of pharmacoepidemiology and pharmacovigilance and would like to be included in the ENCePP network, please apply by completing the electronic questionnaire.

ENCePP Resources Database

The ENCePP Database of Research Resources is part of the European Network of Centres for Pharmacoepidemiology and Pharmacovigilance (ENCePP) and has been developed by the ENCePP Working Groups "Inventory of EU pharmacoepidemiology and pharmacovigilance research centres in ENCePP" and "Data sources & Multi-source Studies".

The Resource Database is an electronic index of the available EU research organisations and data sources in the field of pharmacoepidemiology and pharmacovigilance. It is available at the ENCePP web portal to the general public.

The Database will offer access to the available sources of information, expertise and research experience across Europe and serve as a central resource for both researchers and study sponsors seeking to identify organisations and data sets for conducting specific pharmacoepidemiology and pharmacovigilance projects in Europe.

The Database comprises two Indices, the Inventory of ENCePP research centres and the Register of EU data sources. Both the Inventory and the Register are fully searchable and allow the identification of centres and data sets by country, type and many more relevant key words.

If you and/or your organisation are interested and/or actively involved in performing research in the field of pharmacoepidemiology and pharmacovigilance and would like to be included in the ENCePP network and/or the present Database, please follow this link, join ENCePP, or contact us at encepp_secretariat@emea.europa.eu.
